This course is designed for anyone with an interest in drawing the human figure in a life room setting. The course takes students back to the basics of the art of life drawing.

During 10 weeks, we teach you all about the basic drawing methods and practices, whilst each session focuses on one specific aspect of drawing the human figure – foreshortening, measuring, drawing the head, facial features, hands and feet, etc. – all those aspects which people often find problematic. We teach you tips & tricks for each!

By the end of this course, you will know a wide range of techniques that will act as shortcuts for the more difficult aspects of life drawing – and these will improve your drawing skills many times over. We often hear this from past students of this course.

The emphasis in this course is on practice throughout: you will be gaining hours upon hours of drawing experience.

The focus of this course is to enable the participant to comfortably draw in a life class setting. After this course, you will be confident, experienced and knowledgeable enough to join any life drawing class up to intermediate level.
